AGRICULTURE JOB MARKET REPORT

Executive Summary

PURPOSE

Purdue University's Department of Agricultural Economics started collecting data on agricultural job postings during the summer of 2021. This data is collected monthly and this report represents an overview of the agricultural job market over time. The data extends from June 2021 to February 2022. The Agricultural Job Market Report creates a measurement of the current state of agricultural job openings.

ABOUT THIS REPORT

Google's job search engine pulls job postings from thousands of separate job boards. These job boards can be company specific as well as common job posting sites like LinkedIn and Glassdoor. On Google's job search engine, LinkedIn is the most popular job board for agricultural jobs that are found in the data.

JOB TRENDS

On average there are around 1,292 new agricultural job openings posted each month and the August experienced only 723 new job openings on Google. Job postings, job openings, and new jobs have been decreasing since May 2022.

SALARY

The average agricultural job salary is $56,865, which is below the average salary for all jobs in the United States. Jobs in sales, academics, and lending and finance are among the highest paid average salaries in agriculture. Remote jobs have the highest average salary followed by the Midwest.

DESCRIPTION ANALYSIS

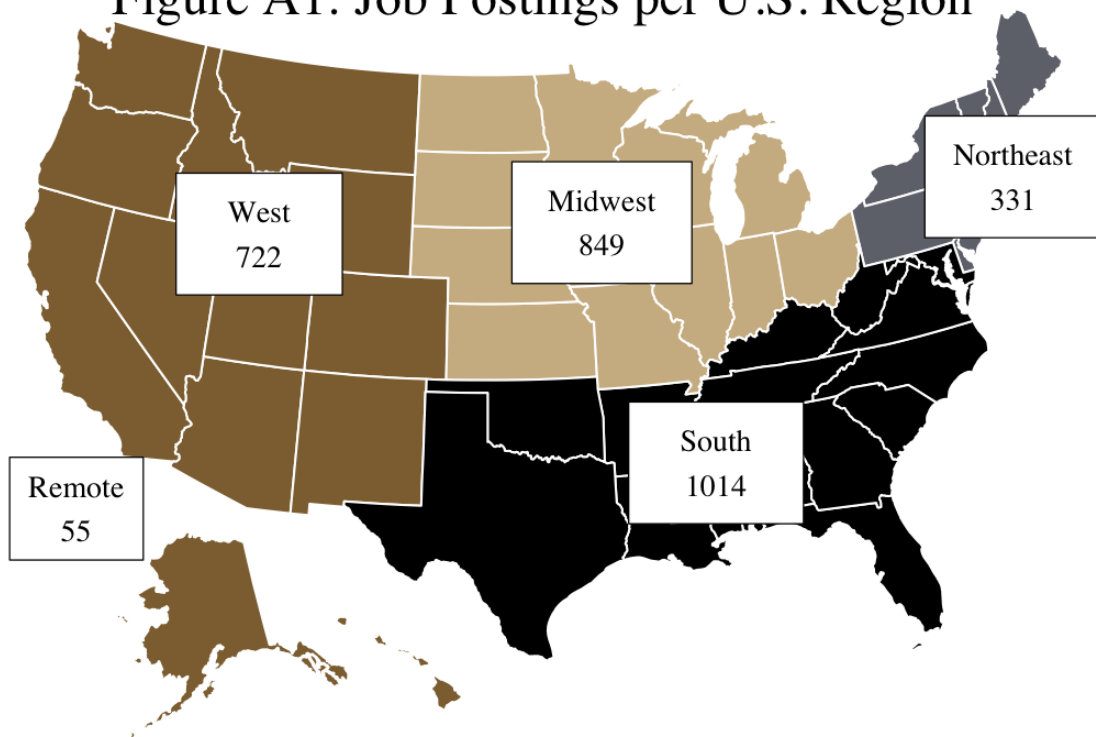

Agricultural jobs require a fair amount of experience. It is calculated that 88% of agricultural job postings mention experience in some form. In terms of job openings, the top 5 agricultural subsectors are business administration, engineering, sales, lending and finance, and agronomy. Overlap of knowledge in subsectors is also evident. Terms related to farming, natural resources, sales, agronomy, and economics appear often in the same job postings.

Job Postings

In the report, “job posting” refers to any separate occurrence of a job advertisement for an individual job. Any representation of a single specific job opportunity of a company will always be phrased as a “job opening”.

Some companies have existing career pages on their website but continue to post to job boards like LinkedIn and ZipRecruiter. Companies post to multiple job boards to cast a wider net for potential hires. Figure A1 illustrates the amount of job openings for each region of the United States. As of August 15th, 2022, there were 2,971 agricultural job postings.

AGRICULTURE JOB MARKET REPORT

Job Trends

Figure A2 represents 1 years' worth of job trends for each month from August 2021 to August 2022. On average around 1,292 new job openings are posted each month. The total number of agricultural job postings has generally increased over the data collection period up until May 2022. Since May 2022, we have experienced month over month decreases in job openings, job postings, and new job openings on Google's job search page. This could be a signal showing the effects on employers by economic pressures such as inflation.

AGRICULTURE JOB MARKET REPORT

Salary

The national median salary computed from the data was $50,200/year and the average salary was $56,865/year. Figure A3 illustrates the distribution of salary among agricultural job postings. According to ZipRecruiter, the national average salary for agricultural related jobs is $53,900/year and the average salary for all occupations is $67,582/year.

SALARY BY CATEGORY

The job openings in this data are not equally distributed across all subsectors of agriculture and salary varies among subsectors. Jobs in sales ($78,008/year), academics ($74,270/year), and lending and finance ($67,047/year) have the highest paid average salaries. Jobs in farming rank last with an average salary of $42,178/year.

SALARY BY REGION

Average salaries vary by region. Figure A4 illustrates the variation in average salaries across the U.S. Fully remote jobs have the highest listed salary at $60,069/year. The Midwest has the 2nd highest average salary listed in job postings at $59,379/year followed by the West at $58,998/year. The fourth highest average salary by region is the South at $55,675/year, followed by the Northeast at $52,005/year.

Description Analysis

KEYWORDS

The data can be grouped by mentions within job descriptions. Table 2 reports the percent of job openings that include each word or some variation of it. The top 5 terms are farming, natural resources, sales, agronomy, and economics. Job types that fit this description include seed and equipment sales positions, both of which require knowledge of the top 5 keywords to recommend and market products to farmers and consumers.

Table 2 Keywords	Job Openings that Mention
Academic	9.7%
Economics	29.6%
Ag Education	8.0%
Engineering	16.6%
Sales	55.1%
Agronomy	46.1%
Animal Science	24.3%
Farming	64.4%
Food Science	21.4%
Natural Resources	60.6%

REQUIRED SKILLS

Table 3 shows the average percentage of mentions for specific job requirements. Most agricultural jobs require experience, leadership, communication, education, teamwork, and travel, with experience being the most sought after quality. As Table 2 shows, agricultural jobs require knowledge and experience in multiple disciplines. Communication is an important agricultural job characteristic, referenced in the descriptions of 74% of job openings. We can infer that communication is a core competency for completing day-to-day work in agriculture. Overtime, this table could illustrate changes in skills requirements within the agricultural sector. Though data related skills are only required for 31% of current job openings, demand for these skills by employers may grow as agriculture continues to innovate.

Table 3 Requirements	Job Openings that Mention
Communication	74.3%
Critical Thinking	21.9%
Data	31.4%
Education	68.4%
Experience	88.4%
Leadership	78.5%
Microsoft	43.5%
Public Speaking	36.4%

DESIRED EDUCATION

Table 4 reports the percent of jobs postings in agriculture that mention each desired level of education by applicants. To be included, the educational term must be explicitly written in a job description. Generally, a low share of agricultural jobs indicate a required educational attainment. According to Table 4, a bachelor's degree, the most cited degree requirement, is only mentioned in 18% of agricultural job postings.

Table 4 Desired Education	Job Openings that Mention
High School	14.6%
Associates	2.4%
Bachelors	17.8%
Masters	10.0%
PhD	8.3%

JOB BENEFITS

The data for key terms related to job benefits are in Table 5. These include the broad terms of benefits, diversity, equal opportunity, tuition reimbursement, and 401(K). Companies may not report all the relevant benefits in an online job description. These numbers should serve as guides to understand what is being displayed in job descriptions, but are unlikely to fully capture the benefit packages offered by agricultural employers. We can see that most agricultural job postings use the general term "benefits" in the description but few references specific benefits such as 401(K) and tuition reimbursement.

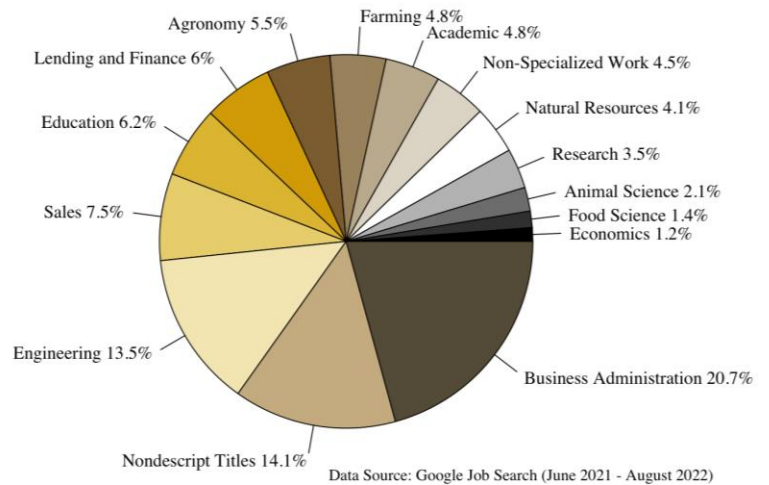

Table 5 Benefits	Job Openings that Mention
Benefits	65.9%
Diversity	31.9%
Equal Opportunity	86.4%
Tuition Reimbursement	5.9%
401(K)	9.6%

JOB CATEGORIES

Jobs can be classified based upon terms written in job posting titles. The pie chart in Figure A5 shows the breakdown of agricultural job categories from June 2021 to August 2022. The most common job types are business administration (21%), engineering (14%), and sales (8%). Job titles that could not be classified make up nearly 14% of agricultural job postings.

REMOTE WORK

At the beginning of 2020, the Covid-19 pandemic disrupted in-person and office-based work. To slow the spread, companies that were able to work remotely pushed for the safer alternative of tele-work. It is worth knowing how common remote work is in agriculture and the trend in agricultural remote work over time. Mentions of remote work have generally increased over time.

AGRICULTURE JOB MARKET REPORT

DURATION ON JOB MARKET

The amount of time that a job opening is listed can be an indicator of how fast agricultural jobs are filled and how long agricultural employers search for potential candidates. Throughout this study, 60% of agricultural jobs are removed from job posting sites within one month while over 22% of job opening have been posted for 3 months or longer.

DATA COLLECTION

For this research, data was collected through Google's job search engine utilizing an Application Programming Interface (API) provided by SerpApi. The data collected for the report includes job title, company name, description, salary (if posted), posting date, and original job board site name.

Not all online job postings appear on Google's job search engine and as a result the data discussed in the report should be treated as a sample of job openings existing within the agriculture industry. Indeed.com, the number 1 job site in the world, does not share job posting data with Google. Google's job search engine represents only a fraction of jobs posted online. Job postings can be posted on multiple job boards such as LinkedIn, Glassdoor, as well as company websites that allow Google's Cloud Talent Solution to analyze their job postings and display them on Google's job search engine.

Job postings that are available on Google's job search engine are curated to best fit the search terms of the user. The data in this report was collected using a general search term of "agriculture". Data presented in this report could impose bias that is specific to Google's job search engine data. Although possible, we believe the data collected is valuable for industry employers as a metric for comparing company hiring to the agricultural industry. Therefore, this report is an analysis of Google's data and is not fully representative of the agricultural job market.

Note that not all online job postings appear on Google's job search engine. Job postings can be posted on multiple job boards such as LinkedIn, Glassdoor, as well as company websites that allow Google's Cloud Talent Solution to analyze their job postings and display them on Google's job search engine. Job postings that are available to Google's Cloud Talent Solution are curated to best fit the search terms of the user. For this study, the search term included: "agriculture." This allows for a broad variety of jobs to be collected that exist within the agricultural job market. The data discussed in this report represents all job postings in the United States collected from Google's job search engine from June 2021 to August 2022. Google's job search engine is a conglomerate of multiple online job boards. Within the data, no jobs were collected from Indeed.com. Indeed.com does not allow Google access to their job board unlike other popular job sites. Google must be granted access to a company's job posting before advertising on Google's job search engine. Many job openings appear on multiple job boards at a given time to get more advertising to potential employees.

Google's job search engine hosts thousands of job boards' data. Due to the immense amount of job boards available, job advertising is a competitive market. Companies seeking premium talent should post to the more popular job boards which produce more traffic.

DESCRIPTION ANALYSIS

From the data, each job posting has a description. Text mining was used to pull information from these descriptions, and it is possible to quantify the amount of mentions of specific characteristics. We were able to extract salary if not already mentioned, subsector information, requirements, and education. The categories were found using the "bag of words" technique. A list of words was created to represent any similar phrases and synonyms that represent a characteristic of interest. For example, quantitative skills would be marked as appearing in a job posting if terms appear in the description such as "quantitative", "analysis", "prediction", "mathematics", and "statistics." These terms are represented as nouns, verbs, and adjectives to catch all forms of context that might be represented in written language. Descriptions are then searched to evaluate if any of these terms were mentioned. If a term was mentioned once or more, the description was tallied as mentioning those specific characteristics.
