

6-Month and 3-Month Internships Windfall Indiana Research Station

About this location: Windfall is an eastern multi-crop research station whose major function is to deliver industry leading corn, soybean and wheat products. Additionally, this station has other programs that support all three crops including: UAS aerial imagery, seed production research, insect and seed treatment trials, data collection to build predictive crop models and much more!

Looking for motivated individuals with a passion for agriculture, who want to learn how a research station functions, and enjoy working outside in variable conditions. These positions will provide a well-rounded experience in field research and the opportunity to work for one of the world's leading agricultural companies.

Multiple Internships Available:

Seed Product Development (SPD): Soybean product development for 2L-3L maturity groups to produce elite soybean varieties for the Eastern Corn Belt region. Maize product development for 105–113-day maturities in yellow, white and waxy corn. Wheat product development for hybrid and varietal soft red winter wheat. Candidates will gain a wide range of experience across crops and programs with data collection, analysis, and field management. Opportunities for 3- and 6-month internships available. These positions are open to current sophomore standing and above.

Trait Characterization and Development: A Trait Characterization and Development internship provides the opportunity for candidates to generate in-depth trait performance data so that we can provide sound recommendations across our biotech trait pipeline. Tasks may include but are not limited to phenotypic data collection alone or with a crew, plot infestation, tissue sampling, plot harvest, and completing an intern project. This position is open to current sophomore standing and above for a 3- or 6-month internship.
