

HighGround Dairy is seeking a driven agricultural analyst with strong writing skills to join our quickly growing company. HighGround Dairy provides the dairy industry with customized hedge advisory services, industry-leading market intelligence, and futures/options brokerage execution to help companies and farms achieve their price risk management objectives.

Job Description

- The role will include researching and publishing comprehensive written market analysis for domestic and global dairy markets, including price forecasts and market related opinions. The position will also provide operational assistance maintaining subscriptions and day-to-day onboarding of new or potential customers. The analyst is expected to be a team player, contribute to internal and external conversations, and be willing to take on extra duties when other team members are absent.
- HighGround Dairy is based in Chicago, IL; a successful candidate will be located in Chicago, but remote work will be considered on an extraordinary basis.

Preferred Experience

- 3+ years of industry (dairy and/or journalism) experience preferred. Candidates anticipating receiving a four-year BS degree in May 2022 with relevant classwork and/or internship will be considered.
- Experience conducting fundamental market research or reporting
- Experience working in a commodity related role - understanding of the agri-business environment a plus
- Knowledge of futures and cash markets a plus
- Strong analytical, logic and problem-solving skills, independent decision-making abilities, and excellent oral and written presentation skills are required
- Excellent MS Excel, Publisher, Word, and PowerPoint skills - highly proficient in Excel with the ability to run extensive and complex reports and queries
- Ability to be respectful, approachable and team oriented while building strong working relationships (internal & external) in a positive work environment
- The successful candidate will have a passion for the commodity markets and how they operate as well as a desire to learn from their peers and management team
