Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore • May 19 to Aug. 10

The Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore team will be working in the parks' numerous wetlands in the effort to restore native wetland habitats using various methods that include but are not limited to: planting native plants, collecting seed, applying herbicide, removing shrubs and trees, monitoring and recording planting data, and invasive plant removal; community outreach and educational activities. You will learn wetland restoration techniques and be given the opportunity to teach other volunteers your skills. Also some educational outreach and working alongside Indiana Dunes staff and possibly the chance to work on other special projects.

Work throughout the park on restoration projects, including removal of terrestrial and aquatic invasive species (hand pulling, mechanical, and herbicide treatment), native plant propagation (working with the greenhouse from seed to transplanting), and prepping areas for prescribed burns.
