Indiana Packers Corporation

Management Trainee-

This is a position for graduating seniors looking for full-time work. These opportunities are generally a 6-month training program where individuals learn various areas throughout the plant, including production, procurement, shipping/logistics, sales, accounting, and HR. At the end of the training period, the individual is usually offered a position to work as a production supervisor, or possibly in another area, if there is an opening. Traditionally, people with degrees in Animal Science, Food Science, or Organizational Leadership and Supervision have success in this program, but other degrees have the potential as well.
