Below is the link for a Horse Unit Manager position in the Department of Animal and Food Sciences at the University of Kentucky.

This position is located at the department’s Maine Chance Horse Farm in Lexington, KY.

The position is responsible for the daily management of the horses and facilities at the Horse Unit. Specific responsibilities include the overall health care of all animals; decisions related to dietary management of horses; making decisions and implementing the breeding program and oversees foaling and neonatal foal care; maintaining animals as described in experimental protocols; providing guidance on animal care, handling and data collection to graduate students, laboratory technicians and faculty as needed to facilitate the successful completion of research projects; delivering lectures and teaching lab sections related to horse handling and horse management in several animal science and equine science courses; developing and delivering educational seminars for extension clientele during field days and short courses; supervising and coordinating work schedules of two full time employees and 6-10 student employees to provide animal care, facility maintenance and completion of research and educational activities; hiring and training new employees; maintaining records on animals and equipment; procuring supplies and services; and will function as unit point of contact. Additional information about the position can be found at the link below.

Please distribute this information to any potentially interested individuals.

To apply for this position, a UK Employment Application must be submitted to UK Requisition No. RE15176 at https://ukjobs.uky.edu/postings/195652.