Thank you for your interest in Legan Livestock & Grain’s Internship Program! We understand the importance of the internship experience to students for job experience and future employment. We also value the ideas and enthusiasm of new interns. We have been fortunate to employ interns from various schools in the past several years. College Interns have come to us from Purdue University, Ivy Tech Community College, Lakeland Community College (IL), and the University of Findley (OH). We have also employed high school interns through Area 30 Technical School.

About Legan Livestock and Grain:

Legan Livestock & Grain is located in central Indiana approximately 40 miles west of Indianapolis and 30 miles east of Terre Haute. We are a 3,000 sow breed to wean family farm producing 80,000 weaned pigs annually. One third of the weaned pigs are sold to customers (farmers) in Indiana & Illinois and the rest are co-owned with two other partners in Indiana. We crop farm approximately 1,000 acres of corn and soybeans as well.

Below is a comment from a previous intern.

“While pursuing a career as a production animal veterinarian, this internship gave me an inside view of one of America’s primary production animals – swine. I have gained an understanding of the pork industry from the producers' standpoint. Through this internship, I now have a clearer understanding of a producer’s need to carefully consider and weigh the pros and cons of treatment options”. ~ Joni (summer 15’)
