Congratulations:

On August 18 at 2PM in Krannert Conference Room 661, the department will have a short welcome-back-to-the-department gathering to reconnect with faculty and staff before the academic semester begins.

Congratulations to Drs. Maria Marshall and Nicole Widmar on their July faculty promotions and the six administrative professional staff who were promoted in rank by the College: Angel Aguiar, Ginger Batta, Kristyn Childres, Amy Cochran, John Fansler and Shelly Surber. Dr. Foster will introduce new faculty, Michael Wetzstein and Dominique van der Mensbrugge, as well as new staff, Jessica Eise and Jeremy Douglas. Also, some emeriti will be visiting the department that day and those whose schedule allows will be in attendance.

Congratulations to Nicole Widmar and Benjamin Gramig for winning second place out of 90-some posters at the World Congress of Environmental and Resources Economists in Istanbul. Poster title "Estimating farmers' willingness to change tillage practices to supply carbon emissions offsets"

Congratulations are in order for Jill Hufford, who was the recent recipient of the College of Agriculture Business Office Service Award. The award was established to recognize the significant efforts of business office staff members who consistently exert effort above and beyond expectations to help accomplish the College's strategic goals. Please be sure to thank Jill for her efforts on behalf of the department faculty and staff

Please join me in welcoming Dr. Dominique van der Mensbrugge to the department. Today is his first day as Research Professor and Director for the Center of Global Trade Analysis. Dominique's office is in room 563. We are extremely fortunate to have his experience, accomplishments, and leadership in our department. Welcome Dominique – we look forward to years of fruitful collaborations!

In late June, students and faculty from Ag Econ, Civil Engineering, Nursing, and Food Sciences completed a two-year multidisciplinary service learning project in the village of Las Canas, Dominican Republic. The students designed, tested, and constructed a community-based water purification system. Students in Ag Econ (Kevin Camp, Elizabeth Lunik, and Tia McDonald supervised by Dr. Ken Foster) worked with community members to develop a governance board that will operate the system and market water to the community for long term sustainability of the project. The service learning course will start again this fall and focus on a new village leveraging the lessons that were learned in Las Canas.
